

Updated as of September 28th, 2021

NOTICE OF ALLEGED DATA BREACH: Protecting Your Health Privacy from cybersecurity threats

What you need to know about how we're protecting you.

America's Frontline Doctors has a trusted relationship with one of our nation's leading telehealth providers. Through our website, you are able to obtain access to their telehealth physicians.

Recently we were contacted by a journalist who allegedly has been provided with a file containing hacked patient and physician information from an anonymous source. We are investigating this with the greatest rigor possible, and apologize that some of your data may have been put in harm's way.

Because Patients trust us with their medical needs, we are deploying top cybersecurity experts to audit these alleged claims.

At AFLDS we strive for transparency in all things we do and are notifying you as quickly as possible.

What happened:

On September 28th, America's Frontline Doctors was notified that a bad actor allegedly provided patient information to The Intercept. This is an establishment news organization whose founder, Glenn Greenwald, recently quit due to their refusal to publish articles critical of Joe and Hunter Biden.

What we're doing:

We are protecting our patients and notifying you immediately. All possible precautions are being taken. Our teams are working diligently to address the authenticity to these claims and continue serving your health.

The website has been temporarily taken down while our experts perform a forensic audit and determine the best path forward. We will update you as this situation develops.

Thank you for your trust, we will do everything to earn and protect it every day. Rest assured that your health and the integrity of your privacy is our highest priority.